Type 1 trend day through a beautiful fluid. Order at PDH did not get filled so long above IRH with SL below RN. Shaken out of the trade at 8280 by a CPB. Another long above BRN which moved to the end of fluid. Tried a short trade as FTC on the next test. Covered when range low refused to break. Missed the sudden BOF up move

Thanks for the chart, ST Sir.
Regarding your 2nd trade, why did you take direct BO of BRN. When do you wait for BPB and when you take direct BO. Please explain.

Price was moving up after a minor TRAP. where I was shaken out.
On a trend day use every opportunity to enter in the direction of trend. Fluid also gave confidence

Last BOF setup, wasn't that a difficult setup to identify realtime ? similar BOF setup around 8323 range low break failed to show any strong buying.

Pay attention to the time also from 12:30 to 2.30 most of the traders go for lunch and market will not have any conviction
Afternoon move starts around 2.30 and trend will resume at this time generally

Wonderful insight ST. Thank you. I have been away from trading for a few weeks, enjoyed the break, now back to work.

Good chart.
Your FTC entry (last trade), is the short low of the green bar? Since there was no swing low there curious why you would not consider shorting below either of the two red bars but picked the green bar low to short?
Thank you,

Sorry . Could not update the blog for few days.
One of my relatives was sick and I was with him as a bystander at the hospital. Now he is alright
Further my daughter was attending her CA exams after which we went for a small trip to Tirunelveli in TN
Will be back trading on Monday

Hi Rajesh,

Sorry for my ignorance. I'm new to price action trading. I was going through your e-book. I couldn't understand some of the terms.

1. WRB - I guess, this is Wide Range candle.
2. CPB - I assume this is some kind of pull back. Could you please explain?

And Could you please post a post about the price action trading terminology. I searched <http://yourtradingcoach.com/> here as well. But didn't find out the terminologies.

Thanks,
Midhun
